PARENTS' DAY
NEXT FRIDAY

Interesting Program Being prepared by Faculty of Earlington School.

SCHOOL SPIRIT AND SCHOOL SPORTS GROWING.

Another interesting program is being arranged by the faculty of the Earlington Graded and High School, to be presented on Friday afternoon next, to the parents of school children and all others who are interested in education in Earlington. Patrons of the school will be notified by printed invitation as before. The details of the day's program are being worked out and will be ready for the interest and entertainment of all who attend the school on that day. Since last "Parents' Day" the school has developed along certain lines, including music and drawing, which are always interesting, and these features are likely to be in evidence on Friday. The school spirit is excellent and the attendance is improving a little, after a temporary falling off in some of the grades on account of whooping cough and other illness in the community. Teams of basketball have been organized, both among the boys and girls, and these are practicing for real contests later. One interesting game was played with the Earlington Athletic Club team recently, the result of which was reported in THE BEE. Other games will follow later. All patrons of the school should attend these parents' meetings. Prof. Dudley, principal of the school, announces that an effort is also being made to add 200 volumes to the school library through birthday offerings in which the children are becoming much interested.

R. D. Smith Passes Away.

R. D. Smith who lived in country about a mile and a half west of this place died Friday morning about one o'clock after a lingering illness. Mr. Smith was a well known farmer and had many friends in his neighborhood. He was a brother-in-law of Mrs. Albert Toombs, of this city. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss. Also two sisters and a brother in Robertson Co., Tenn. The funeral took place at the Pleasant View burying grounds at 5:30 Friday afternoon, the ceremony was conducted by the Masonic Lodge.

Fire Destroys Residence.

The residence of Jim H. Miller, of the Greasy Creek country, caught fire while the owner and his two children were away from home and when they returned they found the home in ashes.

Mr. Miller was in Madisonville spending the day and his two little daughters were visiting neighbors. In the afternoon he received a telephone call notifying him that his house and everything had burned to the ground and that the structure was beyond saving when the fire was discovered by a passing farmer.

Small Blaze.

The shingles near the kitchen flue on the house occupied by J. H. Corbitt caught fire Saturday about 11 o'clock and caused some excitement. The alarm was turned in and the fire department was soon on the ground. The fire was extinguished with little damage.

MOTHER'S WORK.

Mother hasn't much to do
To keep from growing lonely;
Simply lives the long day through
At little duties only.

Gets a breakfast just for eight,
While for sleep she wishes;
Two for school must not be late—
Then she does the dishes.

Then she sweeps the sitting room,
Dining room and stairway;
Wields a duster and a broom
Till things shine in fair way.

Then she has to dress the three
Small kids who've been sleeping—
"Dick" and Charlotte, Marjorie—
Then more dusting, sweeping.

Then she combs three tumbled heads
And washes three bright faces;
Makes a half dozen beds;
Put things in their places.

Then the lunch for those from school;
Then the chores forgotten;
Then her needle and a spool
Of stout darning cotton.

Dining dishes washed and dried,
Then the porches mopping;
Several patches well applied,
Then a bit of shopping.

Hungry eight to feed at night—
That's the regular number—
Coffee, sausage, biscuits light—
Then the "kids" to stumber.

Then, the supper dishes done,
Her easy day is ended,
Save she sees that one by one,
All the clothes are mended.

Sews the missing buttons back,
Mends the little dresses;
Wipes out every muddy track,
That her sight distresses.

Gets the kitchen all "O. K."
For the early morning;
Winds the clock so it will say
Loud its early warning.

Then, if nothing else to do,
Upstairs she'll go creeping
Just to waste an hour or two
In not needed sleeping.

Mother hasn't much to do—
That's how people view it—
Little work the whole day through,
Eighteen hours to do it.

But pa—he has to work like sin
In his important station,
Eight hours—then he is all in,
And tired as creation!

Society Happenings

Mrs. Ed Rule entertained the East End Card Club at her handsome home on Ridgeway last Friday afternoon. The visitors present were Miss Graham, of St. Louis, and Mesdames Barnhill, Clark, Umstead and Randolph. Mrs. Daves made the best score. The refreshments consisted of a salad course, followed by orange ice, cake and salted almonds.

GEO. KING HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Shot at Saturday Night by Chicken Thief in Madisonville.

WAS GOING OUT TO GET COAL ABOUT MIDNIGHT.

Geo. King had a thrilling and dangerous experience with a chicken thief about midnight Saturday, which he will remember. This would-be thief evidently thought he was in a tight place and took no chance on being captured. One shot was fired by the thief at a distance of but 25 feet, striking an empty coal bucket in Mr. King's hand and tearing an ugly hole in it. The thief escaped. It happened this way. Mr. King remained at his drugstore here until the midnight train Saturday. When he reached home at Madisonville he found his furnace in cellar needed more coal to keep over night and started to coal house with a bucket in each hand. As he descended the steps from his back porch he noticed the profile of a man emerging from the coal house, 25 feet away, outlined against the whitewashed door. Mr. King kept going and called out to the man: "What are you doing there?" The answer was a pistol shot and Mr. King being unarmed and discreet, retreated into the house. The thief removed himself before Mr. King could get his gun and reach a window. The trouble was that the thief was in an enclosure he could not get out of without passing by the man of the house and he naturally had but the one thought—that Mr. King was coming for him. Mr. King thought until the next morning that the thief had shot just to bluff him, but the coal bucket told a different story.

Don'ts For Church Use.

OTHO LONG LOSES LIFE

Jumped on Loaded Tarp at Fox Run Mine and Falls Under

NECK BROKEN, DIES INSTANTLY VERDICT BLAME DECEASED.

Otho Long, aged twenty-four and unmarried, met a fatal accident Friday morning when he jumped on the front end of a loaded trip coming down incline at New No. 11. at Fox Run mines, and was thrown under the moving trip and instantly killed. His neck was broken, spine dislocated and one leg broken. Coroner Stevens was in that part of the country on another case and was on the scene within a short time after the accident. The verdict was to the effect that the deceased met his death while doing something outside of the duties of the place he filled at the mines. His duties are said to have been to wait till the trip came to a full stop at the bottom of the incline and then hitch his mule to the cars and haul them to the tipple. The testimony at the inquest showed that he went to meet the "trip" and jumped on the front for a ride, one witness reporting that he said, "watch me catch this wild locomotive." The deceased was a brother of Luther and Jim Long and lived with and was the support of his mother and invalid father. He had not this time been long employed there, but had in previous years worked at the same mine. This is said to be the first time in thirty five years that a man has been killed outright at or in the St. Charles mines.

IMPROVED ORDER REDMEN WORSHIP

Special Memorial Services Held at the Methodist Church.

Improved Order of Redmen, of Earlington, worshiped in a body Sunday morning at the M. E. Church, South, and enjoyed a memorial sermon by Rev. Brandon. The pulpit was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, roses, carnations, etc., which were sent in by the Lodge committee on arrangements for the occasion. Some special music was rendered by the choir appropriate to the service. It has come to be a custom with several of the benevolent orders here to worship in church in a body occasionally. There was a fine and representative body in attendance Sunday.

Careful George.

"I had a letter from George this morning. He said his mother had accidentally broken her arm."

"George is always so careful. Many a young man would have left out the word 'accidentally,' leaving you to infer that she had broken it purposely."

Miss Alice Miller in Japanese Typhoon.

The October number of the Tokyo Christian, published at Tokyo, Japan, tells of a typhoon which wrecked the cottage of Mr. Cunningham, editor of that publication, and forced the Cunningham family to vacate, each time at night. Miss Miller spent the summer with the Cunninghams in their cottage at Karuzawa. The cottage had to be torn down and reconstructed on a new lot, because of the flood damage.

five year lease on the building lately occupied by C. P. Smith's department store and will move the combined Hustler and Journal plants to this building in the near future. One of the store rooms down stairs at the new quarters will be used as living rooms or offices.

THE LITTLE PAPER.

When the evening shade is falling
At the ending of the day,
And a feller sets a smoking
At his little pipe of clay
There's nothing does him good
Be his fortune up or down
As the little country paper
From his old home town.

It's not a thing of beauty,
And it's type not always clean,
But it straightens out the temper
When one is feeling mean,
It takes the wrinkles off the face
And brushes off the frown,
The little country paper
From the old home town.

It tells all about the parties,
And all the folks you know,
How the mayor of Pumpkin Oater
Said the crops would grow,
And it keeps a fellow posted,
About who is up and who is down,
That little country paper
From the old home town.

Now I like to read the dailies
And the other papers too,
The latest books and novels
Like other people do,
But when I want some reading
That will smooth away a frown,
I want the little paper
From my home town.

Newspaper as Text Book.

The plan of making newspapers a topic for study in the public schools might be extended with good results, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. However well grounded one may be in ancient language and history, he cannot be called educated unless he knows what is going on in the wide world from day to day and is able intelligently to interpret contemporary movements. If such study and observation could be left safely to the home the schools might ignore them. But, unfortunately, such a delegation of responsibility is fraught with danger.

Newspapers, their manifest errors notwithstanding, are an educative agency whose power is not always fully appreciated, either by the publishers or by the public. It is well occasionally to recall their possibilities in this direction. Schools might profitably make more liberal use of the best newspapers of the day.

J. H. Foard spent Sun. and Mon. in Clarksville.

Ed Morrison left for Pembroke Sunday for a visit.
